

Call for Application/ Expression of Interest

To Provide Pro Bono¹ Consultancy for Legal Analysis and Support

Location: Liberia (initial in-country placement required)

Duration: 6 months minimum preferred (longer-term applicants will be prioritized)

Type: Consultancy / Fellowship / Internship

Deadline: July 31, 2026

Background

Integrated Development and Learning works with communities across Liberia on sustainable livelihoods, forest conservation, local enterprise development, financial inclusion, and equitable economic growth. You can access and download our 2025 Annual Report here.

IDL seeks capable and motivated legal professionals to provide analytical, research, and practical support across a range of community-centered initiatives. This role is suited to candidates seeking meaningful responsibility, real-world problem-solving, and field experience in a dynamic environment.

This role is suited to candidates seeking meaningful responsibility, field experience, and the opportunity to apply environmental knowledge in real-world conditions.

Scope of Work

The selected consultant may support the following:

- Review Liberian laws, regulations, and policies relevant to land rights, forestry, environmental protection, agriculture, cooperatives, and local governance
- Prepare concise legal briefs, summaries, and practical guidance materials for staff and community stakeholders
- Support legal literacy and rights-awareness initiatives at the community level

¹ IDL will, however, cover the costs of travel and accommodation in Liberia.

- Conduct comparative research on relevant international legal frameworks and best practices
- Assist with documentation related to land matters, regulatory processes, agreements, and compliance issues
- Contribute to reports, proposals, advocacy materials, and program design as needed
- Provide strategic legal insight on emerging operational or policy issues

Candidate Profile

Required:

- A Degree or current study in Law, Public Policy, International Development, Political Science, Political Economy, or a related field
- Strong research, writing, and analytical skills
- Ability to think independently and work effectively with limited supervision
- Interest in governance, environmental justice, land rights, or community development
- Adaptability and willingness to live/work in Liberia initially
- High tolerance for ambiguity and changing priorities

Preferred:

- Experience in legal aid, environmental law, human rights, policy research, or community-based work
- Familiarity with Africa or other Global South contexts

What IDL Offers

- Meaningful responsibility from an early stage
- Direct exposure to real legal and governance challenges
- Opportunity to contribute to projects with visible community relevance
- Mentorship and practical learning in a fast-moving environment
- Unique international field experience in Liberia

Application

Interested candidates should submit a CV and a short statement of interest outlining their relevant experience, availability, and reasons for wanting to work in Liberia via email to info@idlliberia.org

Candidates who can support themselves while in Liberia are preferred. Those who would need IDL contribution to cover their costs of living in Monrovia are encouraged to apply.

Needed: Consultancy